

SECTIONS

Nation

SUBSCRIBE

BUSINESS <AΓA"ĆPσ·Δ< <A∩?·Δ°

Eeyou Mobility targets year-end launch of service in six communities

BY BEN POWLESS NOV 10, 2021

We've placed cookies on your device to improve your browsing experience. They're safe and don't contain sensitive information. If you want, you can change your cookies through your browser settings. If you continue without changing your settings, we'll assume you're ok to receive all cookies on the Nation website. For more information view our privacy policy. I UNDERSTAND

SECTIONS

Nation

SUBSCRIBE

Eeyou Mobility is closer to launching their full commercial services across the Cree communities. The company announced it will be servicing Ouje-Bougoumou, Nemaska, Mistissini and Waswanipi, as well as Chapais and Chibougamau, by the end of the year, according to president Henry Gull.

We've placed cookies on your device to improve your browsing experience. They're safe and don't contain sensitive information. If you want, you can change your cookies through your browser settings. If you continue without changing your settings, we'll assume you're ok to receive all cookies on the Nation website. For more information view our privacy policy. I UNDERSTAND

SECTIONS

Nation

SUBSCRIBE

He said these proposals are outlined in the plans that were submitted to the Quebec government, and that they're awaiting a positive response. The partners include Rogers, who will provide service to Eeyou Mobility customers when travelling across Canada (and provide service to Rogers' customers travelling in Eeyou Istchee and the James Bay region), and SSi Canada, a telecommunications company based in the Northwest Territories with experience building communications infrastructure in remote areas.

Gull also clarified that the system will be running on 4G LTE technology, which will allow the services to extend to farther areas. He said that during beta testing, they heard a response from a man on a skidoo on the Ouje-Bougoumou access trail who was the only one in his group to get cell-phone service.

"Cree participation and direct involvement in the development of Eeyou Istchee is an underlying principle of the James Bay and Northern Quebec Agreement as well as our more recent agreements with Quebec and Canada," said former Grand Chief Abel Bosum in a press release.

"Over the years, this principle has enabled us to direct our own future and provide opportunities for our families, our communities and our nation. Eeyou Mobility Inc. is another good example of what we can achieve, working together, to improve conditions for our people, to create growth and to prepare the next generation with the assets they will need to continue on this path."

We've placed cookies on your device to improve your browsing experience. They're safe and don't contain sensitive information. If you want, you can change your cookies through your browser settings. If you continue without changing your settings, we'll assume you're ok to receive all cookies on the Nation website. For more information view our privacy policy. I UNDERSTAND

SECTIONS

Nation

SUBSCRIBE

He added that the company wants to involve a lot of Cree people to work with them, and they are employing one person per community as a service provider, including in the Jamesian communities. “We encourage people to get into this kind of business. We will be training employees to work in the head office in Chisasibi,” Gull added.

“We want everyone to know that we are working hard to finish the network, targeting before Christmas to have it completed, and to let people know our plans are very competitive. There are pay-as-you-go contracts, you can bring your own phone, or buy a phone from us or a third party, you can get a chip and be ready to operate in our network.”

by Ben Powless, Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

We've placed cookies on your device to improve your browsing experience. They're safe and don't contain sensitive information. If you want, you can change your cookies through your browser settings. If you continue without changing your settings, we'll assume you're ok to receive all cookies on the Nation website. For more information view our privacy policy. I UNDERSTAND